0.1 Title: Judging a Book by Its Cover (Genre Classification and Image Captioning)

UNI: pc3019 By: Preethi Chandirasekeran

0.1.1 Introduction

It is often said that one should not judge a book by its cover. However, most readers analyze the cover while forming an opinion on a book. This project leverages book cover images to achieve two main goals. The first is to build deep learning models for book genre classification. The second is to build an image captioning model for book covers. These models can be used to provide more insight to prospective readers and help them choose books that they would enjoy reading. These models can also be used by authors who find the genre of their book ambiguous and want to determine the genre of their book to ensure that it reaches the appropriate audience. Furthermore, understanding how to describe book genres from book covers can be used to improve book recommender systems. This project uses a dataset constructed from web scraping the social cataloging website Goodreads.com which contains a vast collection of digitized book covers, book reviews, ratings, quotes, and more.

0.1.2 Key Objectives

- Creating a dataset of book cover images and the genres of the corresponding books
- Building, comparing, and evaluating the performance of various deep learning models for genre classification using book cover images. Aim to achieve 40-50% accuracy on the genre classification
- Using multimodal data to perform image captioning of the book covers. Since book covers are often highly stylized, this project aims to implement an image captioning model which can identify the basic content of the book covers Resnet-50 is another variant of the Resnet architecture. It is 50 layers deep and uses bottleneck design for its building blocks. This refers to the 1x1 convolutions used which speeds up the training by reducing the number of matrix multiplications and parameters. A pretrained resnet-50 model was implemented in this project using PyTorch.

0.1.8 Genre Classification: VGG-16

VGG-16 is a state-of-the-art neural network which has achieved excellent results for image classification problems through transfer learning. It is a CNN that is pretrained on a subset of ImageNet. VGG-16 is 16 layers deep with 5 MaxPooling layers, 3 Dense layers, and 13 Convolution layers. Although the number of layers sums up to 21, there are only 16 weight layers.

[175]:
vgg16_model = vgg16(pretrained=True)

crit = nn.CrossEntropyLoss() opt = optim.SGD(vgg16_model.parameters(), momentum=0.9, lr=1e-3)
Here we freeze the layers
